Maureen is a clinician in addition to being well known and sought after guest lecturer in the field of sexual health for men and women. She has a special interest in women's sexual desire. This aligns with our vision for natural based healing options. Maureen's passion over the past several years of learning and responding to her patient's needs has led to natural based healing as a clear option for better health in many instances. She is in private practice both in North Vancouver and at Cross Roads Clinic in Vancouver where she see patients with sexual health issues.

"I am excited at the prospect of raising awareness and providing options about such an important subject as female and male sexuality, particularly the important issue of low sexual desire. Providing evidence-based strategies to patients is the cornerstone to getting people to feel comfortable discussing a subject that until now has been deemed taboo by many. Getting couples to live their life, their way is what this is all about," said Maureen McGrath, RN and Sexpert.
